SEEN, HEARD & TOLD BY THE EDITOR

We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard. Acts 4:20

Mississippi's election laws are so complex, as the now stand, that few folks (and NO ordinary citizens) understand them. It seems to be a good job for some of our alert legislators, like William Winter and-or Billy Semmes to initiate a movement to codify those laws so that anyone could understand them. For example, we had a school bond issue election recently. To carry, one formula was used. Soon, we will have another bond issue election, for hosiery mill extension, and ANOTHER set of rules will govern in THAT election. Some elections require citizens to tote their poll tax receipts; others do not have such a requirement. God Almighty could hardly know what to do in a Mississippi election. The rules should be so simple and all-inclusive that everyone should understand.

Brother Jake Gowan is all confused. With his wife and kids off visiting in Water Valley he has been forced to restart eating in cafes and he dont like it, like he did eating at home.

They say that Dorothy Jean McCorkle was a mighty pretty bride.

Looking across the street, I see that Mrs. Marascalco has finally got Lewis to washing the store windows, a job almost as badly needed as the washing of our own windows.

I hope Daigre finally gets his copies of the GCW. He lives on Leflore Avenue, but we had him on Love Avenue in Greenwood.

"Cap" Jones," colored janitor at the court house may not have the nicest patch of cotton in the county, but the prettiest patch. He reports no boll wevils.

The Misses Knox's home looks much better after a good coat of paint, and so does the Thomas home that of Mary and Margaret.

Roach News: get jeweler Davies to tell you where he set his roach traps to get that fine bunch of fish bait.

Abe Isenberg, California retired capitalist of Los Angeles blew into Grenada Tuesday night to be with his brothers and see Uncle Dan Blue on Black Hawk.

Pop Saunders drifted in from Birmingham Tuesday, roached-up at Hamby's and headed for Luther Koonce at Paducah Wells, Tallahatchie County. Of course, his main objective, if he does not get diverted, is Fish Lake.

It aint only the big shots, like Defenbaugh, Lilly and Benthal who go to the sea to fish. Compress Williams, one of the Hamby's, and other peewees have recently returned from the coast.

Several of our South Street neighbors have been mighty busy, fixing up for parties this week. I mention the Jacksons and the Doaks. It takes a lot of work to keep a pretty place, pretty.

While I would ont touch the matter with a 7-foot pole, I do hear that the "box business" has been settled out of court. How, when, where why, I just dont know. If I knew I would not say so.

We heard that Mr. W. A. Martindale of Elliott is quite ill That's one piece of news we hope aint so.

The McElwee's, visiting here from Delaware, came by and paid up. They are Uncle Joe's folks.

Albert Cohen almost got into trouble the other day when he asked permission to place his roach traps in a certain place.

It's just too hot, to work.

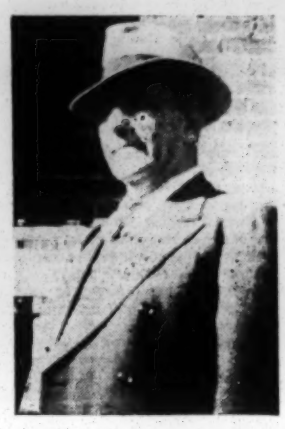
Proby looks unusually happy. Perhaps the reason is that his daughter Susan Grimes, and grandkids of Nashville are visiting him and Mrs. Proby.

Billy Hoffa's place at Oxberry, looked after by Clayton and Louise and colored Oliver Johnson, looks better than I ever saw it and I have known it for sixty years

Tommie Darras, showing his string of fish pridefully to his wife, Melba, was crestfallen when she said that's fine fish bait, where is your catch of fish?

Dave W. Dogan, Former Sheriff, Died Here Thursday



The Death Angel is thinning down the ranks of those who, in 1917, formed Grenada's home company which served two years in World War I.

The latest one to die is Dave W. Dogan, Sr., whose death occurred here Thursday morning, June 18, 1953. He has been in precarious health for several years.

Dave Dogan came from a distinguished Tallahatchie County family. His father was the late J. H. Dogan, Sr., his mother, the late Janie Rice, sister of the famous sheriff of that county, Lent Rice. One member after another of the Rice and Dogan family ruled Tallahatchie County ever since the Civil War. Two of Dave's brothers, J. H. Dogan and Harry served alternately as Sheriff for many terms.

Dave himself served one full term and an unexpired term as Sheriff of Grenada County soon after the close of World War I.

Dave, like other members of the Dogan-Rice clan, had much rather get some po' devil OUT of trouble than to get him in trouble - hence the popularity of those folks throughout many generations.

Too of the folks put off too long things that should have been done. Bill Fedric and I have been figgering on getting Dave in the car and carrying him for a visit out about Cascilla and Rosebloom so that Dave could "visit with" his old friends, and they with him. That trip was postponed on account of Dave's declining health forever too long.

Dave was between 65 and 70, far too old to be drafted even in the 1st World War, but he went along just to be with "Hoss" Garner, another older one, and "the boys." He became what is now a defunct rank, Color Sergeant but served most of his time as MP, especially in the French village of Valahon.

Just recently B. J. Anderson was talking about how hard Dave worked when he was trying to hold together the Dogan old place, how he cut timber, sweated and logged in that area. Mr. Anderson was kind enough, in his reminiscing, to include the writer in the list of those who worked like hell in depression years.

Today, there are only one brother, Harry Dogan of Sumner, and two sisters, Mrs. Chester Brown of Asheville, and Mrs. John Pressgrove of Charleston, of what once was a large family.

Dave himself leaves one son, Dave Jr. of Grenada, and two daughters, Mrs. Joe Neely, Jr. of Grenada, and Mrs. O. L. Whitten of Greenville.

Funeral services are scheduled to be had at Garner Brothers Funeral Home at 10 a. m. today (Friday).

BIG TURN-OUT FOR BOND ISSUE NECESSARY HERE

Majority Must Cast Ballots Is BAWI Requirements

An election will be held in Grenada on Saturday, July 11 to determine if qualified electors favor the issuance of $60,000 worth of bonds to be used for the exppansion of Grenada Industries, Inc.

Mayor R. A. Clanton and members of the City Council met Friday and set the date for the bond issue. The bond issue naturally is favored by the members of the Chamber of Commerce as the expansion of the hosiery mill will give jobs to an additional 75 to 100 people.

City Attorney Bill Fedric said that in the BAWI elections, it is necessary that a majority of qualified electors vote in the election and of those voting, at least three-fifths must vote for the bond election in order for it to carry.

Voting will take place in the four wards: Ward 1, Court House; Ward 2, City Hall; Ward 3, Health Department; Ward 4, Teen Aged Canteen.

The Election Commissioners, S. H. Horton, Pritch Horton and Ed Underwood will get together Thursday and determine which voters are qualified and which aren't qualified to vote July 11.

Those who plan to be on vacation or out of town on July 11 for any reason are urged to secure absentee ballots.

See where Charlie Bennett has moved, or at least moved his GCW from Greenwood to Duck Hill.

I hope other folks have better luck with these guaranteed glass fly rods than I have had.

According to B. J. Anderson, Sr., Grenada Savings and Loan Association, will, after July 1st, pay 3 percent on savings accounts.

HOSPITAIITY STYLE SHOW IS JUNE 25

"Miss Hospitality" To Be Presented Then

The presentation of Grenada's Miss Hospitality at the Grenada Theatre the night of Thursday, June 25 will be the highlight of Grenada's observation of Hospitality Month.

The young girl will be selected by a secret committee and presented at 8 o'clock on that date.

In addition a number of young girls will model clothing from various Grenada stores which will be worn by Miss Hospitality at the state convention.

The stores and their models are: Trusty's, Misses Mary Frances McElwrath, Margaret Bailey and Shirley Wagner; Marascalco's Dry Goods Miss Joyce McCalop; Ladies' Toggery, Misses Donna Jean Sharp and Barbara Vance; Nelson-Stricklin, Misses Bonnie Reynolds and Betty Jo Mitchell; Fashion Shop, Misses Betty Martin, Susan Thorne and Linda Weir; Novelty Shop, Janet Wood; Quality Shop, Bobbie Hayward and Laura Ann Honeycutt; Friedman's, Ann Day.

Kimbrough's, Dattel's, Horton and Horton and Keeton's have not as yet named their models.

LITTLE PIG CAFE BURNS EARLY SATURDAY MORNING

The Little Pig Cafe which has had its ups and downs partially burned about 1 a. m. Saturday.

Fireman estimated that is was 60 per cent burned. It was built about 11 years ago by H. H. Cullens, now of Memphis. A Mr. Furr had owned it in recent years.

It had been closed over a week when it burned.

Although it is outside the city limits, the City Fire force fought the blaze and put it out.

DUCK HILL MEN HONORED AT F.F.A. STATE MEETING

Two Duck Hill men were honored at the annual convention of the Future Farmers of America, held at State College.

They were: James A. Bowen who received the American Farmer degree at a recognition banquet held last Tuesday. B. M. Trapp, also of Duck Hill, was recognized as an honorary American Farmer.

Thanks to Mrs. Willie Moore of Winona for renewal.

Who remembers that long, tall Englishman who was once a chiropractor here, and who "ran a train" by himself in Grenada's train era?

On the cash book, I see the tracks of Mrs. A. W. Hammon and those of A. W., Jr.

Henry Heggie of Batesville is marked as a new subscriber, but I thought he had been getting the GCW in Batesville all the while.

With deep regret, we are cutting Spencer Curry, Oxberry, off the list, and at his request.

I thought surely that the big-shots would have had Fred Dailly witn them in Louisiana last week, but he said nay.

I used to have big times on such parties, but I just cant "take them" any more, maybe getting too old.

If our man, Scott Davis at Oxberry had a real good stand, he would have the prettiest patch of cotton I have seen.

BAWI Issues Certificate For Industries Bond Issue

The Mississippi Agriculture and Industrial Board has issued a certificate of public convenience and necessity in connection with the proposed bond issue for expansion of Grenada Industries it was announced yesterday by W. H. Fedric, chairman of the Industrial Committee of the Grenada County Chamber of Commerce.

Following the formal contractual negotiations between the industry and the City of Grenada, as required by the State's A and I law, an election will be called to seek ratification by the people of Grenada of the proposed $60,000 bond issue, which has already been unanimously approved by the City Council. The date for this election is Saturday, July 11 Mr. Fedrci said.

The expansion plans, announced a few days ago by John Lake, president, call for the addition of 12,5000 square feet of industrial floor space to house facilities for 75 to 100 more employees. An estimated $200,000 additional annual payroll would result.

City and Chamber of Commerce officials have gone on record unanimously in favor of the expansion and resultnat bond issue. They have urged Grenadians to get behind this latest step to further the growth of the city.

n Featured As Leading Salesman

Benton T. Keeton of Grenada is featured in the current issue of the Company's newspaper as the leading insurance salesman of the month. This is no small record for the Lomar Life Insurance Company which he represents has top quality salesmen in six Southern States and it was against touch competition that Mr Keeton excelled.

Not only did he earn the title "Man of the Month" but the article went on to point out that Mr. Keeton has through his volume of sales gone over the top to become the leading agent for the year to date.

Only last week this local agent was informed that he had won two free trips to Mexico City . . . one for himself and one for his wife/ Zay as a reward for personal service to his policy owners and for his concentration on providing insurance protection to more persons in this area. In addition he won vacation trips to Acapulco where he and his wife will be guests of his company at the fabulous Hotel de las Americas for three days. They will fly to Acapulco from Mexico City. The second prize was based on volume of sales.

Mr Keeton has done a remarkable job and is rapidly becoming recognized as one of Mississippi's leading life underwriters.

Mr. Keeton, who now holds the title "Man of the Month" and "Man of the Year to Date", will return to Grenada from Mexico the first week in July.

Tuesday his high was 98, Monday 97, Sunday 100. There have been several days with highs of 100 and 99.

His thermometer also records the minimum temperatures and it shows a low of 69 one time, meaning that the low temperature has been in the early 70s the most of the weeks.

The Grenada County Weekly thermometer which is also in the shade but near concrete sidewalks and brick buildings records a high of 104 to 106 each afternoon. Persons trying to work early to avoid the heat found the temperature at 8 a. m. to be 84 degrees. Keen's thermometer records the degrees upon arrival.

To Demonstrate Radio Relay System Here June 22-23

Radio-Relay, the Bell Telephone System's new super-highway of communication that sends hundreds of telephone messages zipping from tower to tower through space will be the subject of lecture-demonstrations here Monday, June 22 to the Rotary Club, and on Tuesday, June 23, to the Kiwanis Club.

F. J. Lundy, supervisor for the Southern Bell Telephone Co., will use working models of the ultra-high frequency microwave equipment to demonstrate how the new apparatus helps meet the ever-growing demand for telephone and television service in the South.

Radio-Relay now seres the Southeastern section of the U. S. Towers supporting the antennas link Atlanta with Charlotte, N. C. on to Washington, D. C. The system is connected with the trans-continental Radio-Relay chain of towers that stretches from coast to coast and with the Bell System network of coaxial cabels. Another radio-relay system between Louisville, Ky., and Atlanta via Nashville and Chattanooga in now under construction.

Mr. Lundy will bring demonstration equipment consisting of miniature towers, transmitting and receiving equipment to show how the apparatus sends long distance telephone calls and television programs through space.

In addition to a demonstration of Radio-Relay, Mr. Lundy will describe some other recent advances in the field of communications developed by the Bell Telephone Laboratories.

Free—Then What?

Lesson for June 21, 1953

TWO kinds of people pay little attention to law. One kind is made of very bad citizens, so bad that sometimes they lose their citizenship. The other kind is made up of those who are the best citizens. Sometimes they even receive medals or other honors from their communities or from the state. How can this be?

The answer is that the first kind live far below the law; the second kind live far above it. Criminals and crooks are lawless because they are anti-social, they are enemies of society and do not want to be a part of the community. But the other kind of people go far beyond the law, as we saw last week. The best husbands probably do not know what the laws are which govern husbands' treatment of their wives. The best fathers may not know what the statutes are which prescribe the duties of parents. These husbands and fathers are far better than any law could make them.

Law In One Word

All this is true of the law of God, too. His laws are not a precise number of statutes and ordinances. His laws are not a code like a federal code or a municipal code. The entire law of God is summed up, Paul says, in one word, that is: Love. Now Paul would not for a moment deny that we ought to love God supremely. But here he is thinking about loving one's neighbor as oneself. No law, no shelf-full of statute books, no encyclopedia of decisions by the Supreme Court, can cover all cases. But love does cover all cases. You cannot always tell what the law says in a given case. Maybe the law says nothing at all. But love always has something to say. Love always has an answer.

We Know Love

Even if you do not know what the law is, you always know what love is. Because we do know, naturally and always, what it is to love ourselves. Loving yourself means keeping your own interests at heart, giving yourself the benefit of the doubt.

The divine law of love is: Be just as much interested in others as you are in yourself. Be willing to take trouble for them, watch out for them, give them the benefit of the doubt, think ahead for them. When St. Paul talks about Christians being free, he does not mean being free from love, but for love. What is it that ties us down and keeps us from loving our neighbor? Isn't it our love for ourselves? The Christian way of life is to be free from our own demands so as to be free to serve others.

When The Bible Does Not Speak

Some people think of the Bible as a kind of rule-book. Well, there are rules in it, and some of them are applicable to our modern problems. But we have some problems in modern living that the Bible says nothing about. For instance: Shall a Christian use tobacco? Is it a sin for the Christian to bear arms? These and many other questions are not dealt with in the Bible as flatly and sharply as "Thou shalt not steal." For this reason, many Christians think that if the Bible does not mention some problem in so many words, they are free to do as they please about it. By no means. The Christian is free from the law as a curse, as a condition of God's favor, or as a cage; but he is never free from the law of love. And since God is love, and since love is the law of our life as Christians, then the Bible always does have something to say about every situation. It has at least this to say: What does love—God's kind of love—suggest?

Freedom And The Spirit

Some Christians have made the mistake of thinking that if a person is spiritual enough, he will be set free from all human obligations. They have supposed that the law of love, in the sense of love to one's neighbor, is on a lower plane somehow than love of God; and that if a man once gets up in the stratosphere of the divine love, then he can simply forget the world outright. No one who takes his New Testament seriously can make that mistake. Read in Gal. 5:22-25 Paul's list of the fruits of the Spirit. These are not ripened in solitude, but in company with others and in their service.

Travel Tour Acquaints Writers, Club Councilors With State

Newspaper and magazine travel writers, AAA Club representatives and members of the Mississippi Capitol press who were guests of the state on a 1,000-mile tour of Mississippi in April already have started writing glowing reports of the virtues of "The Hospitality State" as a vacation land.

The fifteen guest members of the party covered as many tourist attractions during their week-long circle of Mississippi aboard an air-conditioned Continental Trailways bus.

The famous Presbyterian church with the hand pointing heavenward forms the background for a posed picture of the group just before they entered the historic old edifice to inspect its carved altar and interesting chandeliers which originally graced a salon on the famous river boat Robert E. Lee.

Further along at Vicksburg, the visiting editors accompanied by Miss Hospitality, Suzanne Paul, prepare to board the riverboat Sprague, where they were royally entertained at a catfish dinner. Shown here are Harry Rooker, Chicago Motor Club, and Ed Jones, right, editor, Highway Traveler.

The party paused long enough on its streamlined tour to have the above close-up made as members prepared to board their bus. Left to right, members of the group are: William Burson, United Press; Robert Baur, Houston Chronicle, Clyde Zimmerman, half-hidden, Capper's Farmer, Topeka, Kansas; W. F. Minor, Times Picayune; Joe Hamilton, Clarion-Ledger; R. C. McLemore, Hattiesburg; Ed Jones, partially hidden, Highway Traveler; Miss Nancy Thrash, A. & I. Board; Herb Beck, Chicago American; A. H. Sandeford, Washington Post; Harry Rooker, Chicago Motor Club; Mrs. Pauline Richardson, Hoosier Motor Club, Indianapolis; Mrs. Jerry Gibbons, Chicago; Sylvan Cox, Miami Herald, Kenneth Toler, Commercial Appeal, Driver L. H. Brown, and William E. Barksdale, A. & I. Board director, in doorway.

A BIG LIFT TO EVERYDAY LIVING

Mississippi's telephone service has reached an all-time high of usefulness — as a time-saver in emergencies, and in helping busy men and women do more with less time and effort.

Today, there are over 250,000 telephones in the state, or more than twice as many as the 115,876 we had at the end of 1945.

Cost of new telephone construction being at an all time high, too, those 7 years of expansion cost over 72 million dollars or nearly three times as much as our investment in Mississippi at the end of our first 64 years in business here.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL

If you've ever had trouble growing a lawn, a backyard garden patch or a hundred-acre stand of corn, here's a man you'd like to know.

He's a railroad man, but he doesn't run trains. He works for the Illinois Central, but he also works for farmers. Here two of them watch him test soil samples from their farms.

In a few minutes our man will write these farmers soil prescriptions to doctor their sick land, bring it back into rich and profitable production.

Helping farmers grow larger and better crops, improve their cattle and reforest their land has long been as basic to the Illinois Central as running trains. It has paid off in increased freight traffic, and in the satisfaction of knowing that we have had a hand in conserving and recreating the agricultural wealth of the Mid-America we serve.

HOME HINTS ON HOME LAUNDRYING
By Jeryl Taylor

Miss. Power & Light Co.

The modern automatic washers have reduced the work of laundering almost to the zero point, for practically all that's needed is to put the clothes into the washer and take them out after they're been washed and rinsed automatically. However, no washer is more than a mechanical piece of equipment—it can't give any one piece special attention so, here are some fundamental principles of good home laundering.

SORTING — Wash together only those clothes that require the same temperature of water, the same type of soap or detergent and the same handling.

REMOVE PERISHABLE TRIMMINGS—such as flowers or collars and cuffs that might stain the garment. Some plastic buttons, buckles and the like won't stand the high water temperature and must be removed.

PRE-TREATMENT AND STAIN REMOVAL—Look for heavy soil on the collars and cuffs of shirts, necklines of dresses, etc., Pretreat with a solution of synthetic detergent (1 T of detergent to 1 cup water). Apply to soiled spots with a soft bristle brush. Stains also need special treatment before washing. For this you need a good stain removal chart and a few simple bleaches and solvents.

MENDING — Check for torn places, loose buttons, frayed button holes, etc. They are more easily remedied before laundering than after.

CLOSE ALL FASTENERS—lest they catch and damage other articles. The slide fasteners themselves will be better protected if closed.

TIE BELTS & APRON STRINGS —Its a good idea to tie these into loose knots so they won't become entangled with other articles in the load. Also, put nylon hose in pillow slip.

CHECK POCKETS — Empty pockets and brush cuffs. Bobby pins, etc. left in pockets will stain and so may lint in cuffs.

SOAKING—This is unnecessary for most things. However, there are a few exceptions. Baby clothes and heavily soiled hankerchiefs should be soaked for hygienic purposes. Add a bleach or other disinfectant following the bleach makers instructions.

LAST BUT NOT LEAST—use correct water temperature. Water 140° or hotter, gets clothes cleaner, faster. It is most effective for white or color fast cottons and linens as well as for dark colored dungarees and work clothes. But remember such fibers as wool and silk are weakened by heat. Non-cotton articles, too, must be pampered with tepid water.

The President On Flood Control

President Truman's message to Congress on flood control would have been more persuasive if it had taken in less territory. Everybody is agreed that everything within the scope of engineering skill should be done to control floods in the Mississippi Valley and elsewhere. Everybody is agreed that this problem is too big for any State, or any set of States, short of the Federal Union. But not everybody is agreed that control of high water should be turned into a national carry-all, to be loaded down with every socialistic scheme of power development and subsidized transportation that can be thought up by quick-thinking advocates of public ownership.

Anybody who will read this message can understand why it has met no enthusiastic reception in Congress. It says too much about integration of measures for flood control with plans for the use and conservation of water resources for other purposes, such as irrigation, navigation, the development of hydro-electric energy, creation of new recreational areas and the like. If the President will rewrite it and stick to flood control as flood control, the revised message will get a much more cordial reception.

The flood crests of record height at many a point on the Missouri and Mississippi and their tributaries within recent days lent special urgency to the message, but it must seem to some members of Congress that Mr. Truman dissipated much of that urgency by his recommendation that Congress commit itself post-haste to a ten-year program for the expenditure of four billions.

The President has just as much access to a calendar as any member of Congress. He has known for weeks that Congress would adjourn late in July. This year's floods in the Mississippi River Valley, called the most disastrous of record, are a tragic reminder that hundreds of millions of dollars spent for flood control in the past have not bought flood control. This revelation, sobering as it is, is of itself a warning to Congress that what is done in the future had better be done with at least some of the deliberation befitting a problem of this size and complexity.

MISSISSIPPI HAS MUCH TO OBSERVE ON 50TH BIRTHDAY OF POWER FLIGHT

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is another in a series of articles prepared by the State Aeronautics Commission designed to broaden the knowledge and interest of Mississippians in aviation.

Mississippians have been contributing to the progress of aviation for more than half a century, but during the current twelve months they are expected to concentrate on celebrating the 50th anniversary of power flight and the observance of their state's part in the modern air age.

Even before the turn of the century, a Mississippian, E. C. Huffaker of Oxford, was making a careful study of soaring birds which was published by the Smithsonian Institute in 1897. And even today at State College the subject is still being pursued for further information designed to help man more nearly approximate the flight of birds.

Since the historic first flight of the Wright Brothers at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, on December 17, 1903, Mississippi's aviation pioneers have been keeping pace with the rest of the world in furthering the usefulness of this modern machine.

Mississippi's observance, like those to be held in all states, was launched in Jackson February 18th at a meeting attended by aviation enthusiasts from all over the state. At this time a 23-man committee headed by Walter Bullock, executive assistant to the governor, was named to plan and carry out the year-long celebration.

The committee's proposed program already has received assurance of the support of the Mississippi Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Mississippi Flying Farmers, the Mississippi National Guard, the Civil Air Patrol and the Mississippi Airport Managers Association.

Two important projects of the committee, handled through the Mississippi Aeronautics Association, have already given the long term program a healthy push.

One was the appearance of a featured aviation speaker at the annual Mississippi Education Association Convention held in Jackson during the third week in March.

With aviation a standard course in public schools of the state, teachers attending this year's meeting heard John Furbay, nationally known aviation authority and director of Air World Education, on the subject, "Implication of The Airplane on Civilization."

At the same time Mississippi's education leaders were presented with a new 1953 Air Age Series booklet, "Fifty Flying Years", which was prepared and published by the Aeronautics Commission. This informative booklet, highlighting the history of flight throughout the world as well as in Mississippi, will also be given national distribution through the national committee for the 50th anniversary of powered flight.

Two outstanding aviation events which will highlight the year's observance are to be held in April.

The first is the fourth annual Southeastern Regional Conference of the Student Branch of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences to be held at Mississippi State College on April 9-10th. Representatives from schools throughout the south will participate in a program which has been arranged by Dr. August Raspet, director of the college engineering and research station which has gained national recognition in recent months.

For this outstanding conference the committee has secured as principal speaker Dr. A. M. Lippisch, designer of the deadly German Messerschmitt of World War II fame, an aviation expert who established Germany's training program prior to Hitler's rise.

Another equally interesting event to be staged in conjunction with the 75th anniversary of Mississippi State will be a Research Symposium April 24-25th which will be open to the general public.

Two aviation pioneers will perform for those attending the sessions, one in the air and the other on the speaker's platform.

Rudolph Opitz, a former German test pilot now at Wright Patterson Field, Ohio, will demonstrate the "Flying Wing", a revolutionary sailplane built in Germany before World War II and still a model for sailplanes of today.

The featured speaker will be Grover Loening of Mill Neck, New York, early designer and builder of planes and organizer of the company which is now under the Curtiss Wright banner. His subject will be "Commercial Aviation Hampered By War."

Mississippi's anniversary committee is especially urging participation by local organizations in the observance of outstanding aviation accomplishments in their respective communities and areas.

Special celebrations may be tied in with dedication of new airports, installatior of lighting, completion of new facilities or similar other local accomplishments, the committee points out.

Civic club programs on aviation also are urged, and special projects may include model airplane contests, air tours, air fairs and similar functions of that nature.

Mississippi's aviation history is filled with numerous events which can easily be observed to help emphasize the importance of this industry to the state.

Mississippi is a pioneer in aerial agriculture, having contributed more to its development than most of the other states combined. For instance, the first commercial dusting by plane was accomplished in 1924 at Heathman, almost 30 years ago.

Two early Mississippi pioneers whose names are recorded in aviation's record books are the Key Brothers, Al and Fred of Meridian who established the world's sustained flight endurance record of 653 hours and 34 minutes in 1935, using their own planes.

Roscoe Turner of Corinth, another outstanding name in the history of flying, was one of the nation's first racing pilots, setting a transcontinental record in 1929, and winning the Cleveland Air Races in 1938, just fifteen years ago.

Others too numerous to mention, The Stinson family of Aberdeen, Lt. Commander George Anderson of Holly Springs, Richard E. Byrd's pilot on one of his post-war ventures to the South Pole; and numerous military heroes have all earned places of prominence in the annals of flying.

Because of the growing importance of aviation upon the lives of everyone and upon the industrial, agricultural and cultural development of the state, Mississippians are being urged by the anniversary observance committee to take part in this tribute to those pioneers who have been striving for 50 years to make flight of man faster, safer and more profitable for everyone.

McCreight-McCorkle Vows Said In Church Ceremony Here

In a ceremony marked by dignity and beauty at All Saints Episcopal Church Sunday afternoon at four o'clock, Miss Dorothy Jean McCorkle became the bride of Mr. John W. McCreight of Starkville and Grenada, with the rector, Rev. J. Marshal Frye, officiating. Charles Sisson and Sam Caruthers served as acolytes.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. K. McCorkle of Grenada, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claud McCreight of Starkville.

Nuptial music was presented by

The traditional wedding march and recessional were played.

The beautiful church was decorated with white gladioli in white wicker baskets, placed in the nave of the church leading to the steps of the chancel, and blending in with the baskets of white gladioli, where palm and white tapers glowing in tall wrought iron candelabra placed within the chancel. The aisle of the church was lighted by single candles fastened to the pews, tied with white satin bows and single palm leaves. Lovely sprays of white gladioli filled the brass vases on the altar.

The lovely bride, given in marriage by her father was radiant in her wedding gown of ivory slipper satin. The bodice was fashioned of rose pattern chantilly lace applique on ivory satin to form a portrait neckline and deep square yoke of nylon net, which was outlined with scallops of the chantilly lace and extending gracefully over the shoulder so designed to form a v-shaped nylon net yoke in the back where tiny lace covered buttons extended the length of the bodice. Long sleeves, buttoned to the elbow, ended in calla points over the hands. The gathered skirt ended in a regal train and her veil of bridal illusion which was edged with chantilly lace, fell in two tiers from a coronet of seed pearls. She carried a white prayer book on which rested a white orchid to which cascading ribbons were attached.

Mrs. Jack Ham of Pensacola, Fla., sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Patsy Rogers attended as maid of honor. Their dresses were identical, made of yellow organdy featuring a sleeveless tucked bodice with small collar and tiny buttons, and buffant three-tiered skirts over hoops. At the waist a broad bow of the dress material ended gracefully in streamers. They carried baskets shaped of wired white molene and white wrought iron handles filled with yellow Marconi daisies.

The brides twin sisters, Mrs. Robert McCrain and Mrs. Leonard Pilgrim of Jackson, also Miss Petie Pate and Miss Mary Frances McElwrath were brides maids. Their dresses were identical to those of the matron and maid of honor, but were of pale green organdy, and they too, carried identical white baskets filled with white Marconi daisies.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Wm H. McCreight of Pensacola, who served as best man. Groomsmen were Leonard Pilgram and Robert McCrain of Jackson, W. T. McCreight and Harry Teasley, Jr. of Starkville and John A. Killebrew of Indianola. They also served as ushers. The gentlemen all wore white tuxedo coats, white carnation boutonniere and black trousers. The grooms boutonniere was of lilly of the valley.

Mrs. McCorkle wore a handsome formal gown of violet which featured exquisite bead and rhinestone trim on the bodice and slippers. Her small hat and elbow-length gloves were of a soft shade of pink. Her corsage was a large purple orchid.

RECEPTION

Following the marriage ceremony pictures were made and later a reception was held at the home of the brides parents. The home was beautifully decorated with white glads. Presiding at the brides book was Miss Judie Lake. She was beautifully attired in a pink silk net formal with matching net cap and mits. Mrs. George Criss and Mrs. M. J. Waldrop ggreeted the guests at the door and introduced them to the receiving line, where the bride and groom received congratulations, and where their parents, Mr. and Mrs. McCorkle and Mr. and Mrs. McCreight and members of the wedding party greeted the guests.

Mrs. L. E. Stevenson directed the guests to the gift rooms where Mrs. F. T. Gerard presided. Mrs. Whyte Whitaker and Miss Robbie Doak greeted the guests in the hallway where many other lovely gifts were displayed. Mrs. E. L. Wilkins stood at the entrance to the dining room, and in the dining room a bevy of lovely ladies presided.

The brides table, overlaid with lace was centered by an elaborate 4-tiered wedding cake which was embossed with wedding bells and roses and topped by a bride and groom tableau standing beneath an arch. White and green mints and toasted nuts, were served with the cake and delicious punch. Mrs. J. B. Dubois and Mrs. Norfleet Moore served the cake. Mrs. George Perry and Betty Jo Martin served punch. Mrs. W. J. Sherwood and Miss Marianna Bailey assisted the guests in the dining room. The ladies assisting the hostess at the reception wore formal or late afternoon semi-formal frocks.

Out of town guests included: Mrs. J. A. McKee, Mrs. H. A. McCreight, Mrs. Roland Cowart, Miss Ann McCreight, W. T. McCreight, Mrs. W. K. McCreight and Melba McCreight Mr. and Mrs. C. L. SEEN, HEARD & TOLD BY THE EDITOR

We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard. Acts 4:20

Oscar Staten at Oxberry, I hear is getting to be a sort of expanding landowner. He has not only the place where his daddy used to live but the Emmons old place, the Lawrence old place and another tract all on Hoffa Creek, as it runs thru the hill section.

It is a good thing that Jim Cuff and Herman Heath carried along Margaret Cuff and Lillian Heath when they went to Hot Springs.

Over on Majet Island Sunday I saw some mighty pretty cotton that Hayward and Jacks had. They used plenty of seed planted the rows straight, then by running furrows at right angles to the planted rows had cotton in almost perfect "check" and seem able to plow it four ways. I hardly saw enough grass in it to feed one of Julius Townes' geese.

Our main cat, named Buckingham has found the weather too hot to depend on subsistence from birds and rats, so now depends on scraps that mama and I save from cafe meals.

Modern Education In Action...

WISCONSIN EXCHANGE STUDENTS IN LAUREL SEE HOW GULF FINDS AND PRODUCES MISSISSIPPI OIL

LAUREL, Miss. — A group of Wausau, Wisconsin, high school students have become good-will ambassadors for Laurel and Mississippi through an exchange program which brought them to the South Mississippi city for a two-week visit this month.

The 15 boys and 15 girls, students at Wausau High School, came South with two adult chaperones to spend April 4 through 17 sampling Southern hospitality as guests of Laurel educational, church, civic and business groups and absorbing a liberal education about a section of the country none of them had ever seen.

Theirs is the reciprocal of a visit paid Wausau, a Wisconsin city of 35,000, in February of this year by 26 Laurel high school students under the John M. Bissell Student Exchange Program sponsored by the Laurel Rotary Club.

According to Clifford Swenby and C. D. Boyd, adult companions respectively of the Wausau and Laurel student groups, this exchange is the fourth of its kind in the United States and is a new and progressive educational device.

Boyd, principal of the Laurel High School, declared "The Laurel exchange students found Wausau a very hospitable and friendly city on their visit there earlier this year. Laurel is out-doing itself to reciprocate by showing the Wausau students some real Southern hospitality."

Adult leader Swenby of the Wausau group, in commenting on the Laurel visit, said "This is the first look we have had at the South as it really is. We have learned much of which we were unaware before. We will return to Wausau with a vastly greater understanding of the South, its problems and its amazing development. The people here have certainly made of this group 32 good-will ambassadors for Laurel and Mississippi."

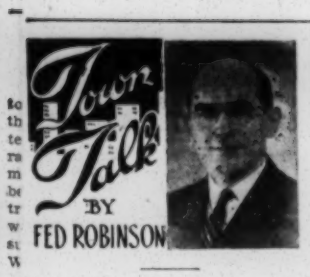
During their two-week stay in Laurel, the Wisconsin group was entertained by a number of civic organizations and business concerns in the Laurel area. The Gulf Refining Company, host to the Wausau students on April 15, provided them with a brief but complete summary of the exploration for and the production of Mississippi oil.

The youngsters were taken on a tour through Gulf's modern laboratory at Laurel which analyzes "cores" (samples of the formations drilled) taken from Gulf wells in this area. J. B. Tomlinson, supervisor of the laboratory, explained methods of locating oil and demonstrated some of the scientists' tools for testing rock cores.

The tour continued to the Heidelberg oil field in Jasper County north of Laurel, where Gulf's Zone Production Superintendent W. W. Ramseur explained methods of getting oil to the surface once it has been found. While at Heidelberg, the Wausau students inspected T. D. Lewi Unit No. 1, a pumping well in the Heidelberg field.

At Sandersville, the group visited the Southland Oil Company's refinery which takes crude oil from the Heidelberg wells and converts it into gasoline, asphalt and other petroleum products.

Souvenirs given the Wisconsinites included a sample of a rock core taken from deep in the Earth, a bottle of Mississippi crude oil, a finished Gulf product, a booklet on the history of oil and gas development in Mississippi and a Gulf Tourguide kit covering the Laurel-Wausau trip.



We often meet people who remind us of some one else. When we know them a while they will show little mannerisms and reveal little idiosyncrasies, or perhaps traits of character that remind us of someone else we know. But, have you ever met ANY one who reminded you of yourself? Think hard - and you will, answer NO. Wonder why no one at all ever reminds us of ourselves? Well, one reason is we think, we nearly always "see" the other person with a critical eye. No matter how much we should practice trying to like everyone we meet, we still see others with a bit of envy or jealousy. If the other fellow seems smart, right away we form a conclusion that he is smart-alecky. If he appears wise we say he is a wise-guy. If he is cheerful and an extrovert type, we say he is a phony and poastful. If he is polite and gracious, we say he is a sissy. So - since we know we are not like any of those described, we seldom meet a person who reminds us of ourselves. I suppose women are the same way.

Did you ever notice the big shiny cars that pass you so blissfully have the largest license numbers - meaning they bought their license LATE, and nearly all the early sold numbers are found on the little hacks driven by hard working people who save up the license fee from week to week and are ready to buy the first day they are on sale. Not only the Lord loves the lowly in spirit, business would go bank tomorrow if we didn't have so many of them to pay up promptly when their bills are due. In my several years experience in dealing with people and their money, I have been able to put them in about three catergories. One group will buy anything they can pack home, need it or not, and pay down as little as possible and neglect the second and subsequent payments as long as they can. Then one group will buy it and charge it and because they have money in the bank they figure the merchant ought to be pleased to sell them and would get highly insulted if a statement is sent out to them, so the good merchant just has to wait until Goldrocks gets around to paying, which frequently is half a year or ore. Then there's another group of people - thank goodness - who will choose wisely and buy carefully and will pay eery payment just as agreed, adding to the pleasure and profits of the merchant. Its the last group of people who are paying the freight to run this country. They are known as the middle class folks and there's a lot of them or else 90 percent of the retailers in your town would be out of business in six months. Note to the Goldrocks: If you believe it makes no difference whether you pay your bills promptly or not, just try sending out those checks promptly and see how quickly you get a reply thanking you for prompt payments. You should know the merchant has already paid for the merchandise you are now using and of course he WANTS his money promptly, you have never asked him or he would tell you he'd like for you to pay promptly as does his middle class customers. You flatter yourself, Mr. Goldrock by thinking the past due debts you owe are a sign of refinement.

The most appreciated letter from readers lately is from Mrs. J. D. Blakely of Sweatman, Mississippi, in which she tells of her early childhood and school days in lush and lovable Mississippi. Those were the good old dayys Mrs. Blakely, altho many people say these are the most wonderful days in our country's history. Well, I am not sure but have always felt that by having lived since the early part of this century and through good times and bad times, enables us to valuate better the good part of the present times with the proper sense of humility. The new family units which began around 15 years ago and less haven't seen life yet as it can really be, and may they never know what we are talking about.

—Easy on the Heart-Strings—

Queen Elizabeth II presumably said to he uncle the Duke of Windsor:

"N, uncle, we shall not invite yuo and the Duchess to my coronation in June because you once chose between your kingship and the woman you loved and we'll just let it stand that way forever."

It would hae been easier on the heart-strings had she said:

"Uncle Edward I am very happy to have the privilege to inviting you and your devoted Duchess to my coronation, I admire you for your strength and courage to plan your own life which belongs actually only to you, and you are and will always remain one of us so long as you are not charged with a greater crime than loving a beautiful woman."

On Father's Day the family had gone to the country for a picnic. Father was standing at the edge of a cliff admiring the sea below, the

How to use and care for your coffee maker.

You'll have more success with your coffee, and the coffee maker will last longer, if you give it the proper care. Above all things, be sure to keep it very clean. It is the oils that remain after the coffee is cooked, that grow rancid and give you that bitter taste.

If yours is a glass coffee maker with a cloth filter, be sure to rinse out the filter cloth thoroughly with cold water after each using. Between usings, keep the cloth in a glass of cold water.

If you have an aluminum coffee maker, wash it thoroughly after each use and rub the inside with a cleanser pad and soap. Be sure to rinse it out thoroughly. It only takes a few seconds, but this daily care will keep the pot sweet and clean at all times.

If your coffee pot is made of any other metal, every once in a while substitute a tablespoon of baking soda for the coffee, add water, and proceed just as though you were making the morning coffee. This will remove any trace of "staleness" and your coffee maker will be sweet and clean again.

How to use and care for your Toaster.

It's easy to have toast browned just as you want it with the new electric toasters. And if you're lucky enough to have the "pop-up" type, you needn't even watch it!

Be careful about cleaning your toaster, though. Never, never put it in water. Use a damp—not wet—cloth to wipe off the inside. Use a mild abrasive, if you must, to take off stains or butter, but be gentle about it.

The heating element cleans itself when you turn on the current. The base of many automatic toasters is removable for easy cleaning.

A small paint brush, kept exclusively for the purpose, is effective for removing stubborn crumbs if your toaster does not have a removable crumb tray. Don't use the brush until the toaster is cool and be sure to disconnect the cord!

For safety's sake remember to let your toaster get thoroughly cool before putting it away.

How to use and care for your Waffle Baker.

Before using for the first time.

If it's a model not "pre-treated" at the factory, thoroughly cover your waffle baker with salad oil or unsalted melted fat before baking the first waffle. Use a pastry brush, and it's very easy.

The next thing you do is to connect the cord, turn on switch heat iron until grids begin to smoke. Now pour on enough batter for one waffle and bake until done. Discard this waffle—it is or has absorbed the excess conditioner—but you won't have to grease the waffle baker again if you take good care of it.

To clean the waffle baker, wipe the edge of the grids with a clean dry cloth. If any particles stick to the grids, remove with a wire brush. Never wash the grids. It spoils the pretreating.

Wipe any spilled batter from the outside of the waffle baker with a damp cloth, then polish with a soft polishing cloth. Never put the waffle baker in water.

To prevent waffle sticking.

If you condition your waffle baker before using, as suggested above, and if you measure ingredients in waffle recipes accurately, your waffles should not stick.

However, if you have difficulty due to improper heating or insufficient shortening in the batter, remove particles from grid with a wire brush. Then follow suggestions as given under "Before using for the first time."

MP&L Company Plant Progressing

No. 2 (right above) depicts the Gantry, or "spraddle," crane used for rapid repair on either generator. Moving up and down the pedestal, or foundation, upon which the generators are mounted the huge mobile "weight lifter" insures the speediest checking and repairing possible on the generators or "heart" of the electric station.

Insert No 3 shows an aerial view of the plant service building (which will house the offices, shops, store and locker rooms), the heater deck, pedestal or foundation for generators, mobile crane, and in the background the station's 115 KV switch yard.

No. 4 shows the circulating water intake station on the mile-square reservoir lake. The concrete square in center foreground is a cooling tank or "tower" for the service water system. The two separate water systems are both designed on a maximum water conservation plan, each using its own water over and over again.

The $22,000,000 electric generating structure, scheduled for completion during the latter part of this year, will insure the western half of Mississippi an ample supply of power for all development and expansion for years to come.

Pastures

Two major jobs during June and all during the summer for pasture farmers are controlling weeds in pastures and preventing over-grazing.

Control weeds by mowing, clipping and spraying. Do not mow close to the ground.

Spraying with 3-4th pound of amine 2,4-D in 20 gallons of water per acre will kill all bitter weeds and help control many other summer weeds.

Control over-grazing by allowing enough land so that stock will not over graze, or change livestock from one area to another so that the grass and clover will have a chance to come back.

Sudan and millet can still be planted for temporary summer grazing. This will help save permanent summer pastures fro overgrazing. Either plant the Sudan or millet broadcast using 30 pounds of seed per acre or plant in rows using 10 pounds per acre.

Apply 60 pounds of nitrogen per acre in rows or broadcast - just as ou planted the seed. If phosphate and potash are needed, use 500 lbs of mixed fertilizer an dan additional 30 pounds of nitrogen per acre.

White Clover Seed Harvest is under way. Now is a good time to check and see if yours is ready to harvest. Cut the clover down where around 75 percent of the seed ehads are dark brown. Leave it in the swath ot dry. This usually takes three or four days. So let your clover seed cure until the seed can be easily rubbed out of the heads.

Poultry

Do you have a lot of "free boarders" in your laying flock? It won't pay to carry these through a long moult. It is easy to tell if a hen is laying. Go through your laying house and look the birds over. Non-laying birds will have a small shriveled abdomen, small dry vent, little space between the pelvic and knee bones. The comb will be pale and shriveled and look scaldy. The legs will contain a lot of yellow pigment.

Remember, birds that begin to moult early, usually are long moulters. Late moulters are usually the best layers.

LAMAR CHAMBERLAIN HEADS COUNTY OIL GROUP

Lamar Chamberlain of Grenada, was elected chairman of the Grenada County Petroleum Industries Committee for 1953-54 at a meeting held last evening at the City Hall.

The Grenada organization is affiliated with the Mississippi Petroleum Industries Committee, a state-wide organization of wholesale and retail oil dealers whose objectives is "fair and equitable taxation of their business and their customers."

Walter D. May of Jackson, executive secretary of the State Petroleum Industries Committee, presented a color film showing how a bill goes through the Mississippi legislature. In his commentary on the film, May pointed out that every citizen should make an effort to understand and participate in the operations of government on every level.

He said: "All public officials should give thought to the tremendous amount of revenue produced at all levels of government and to the hundreds of thousands of jobs provided by the ownership and operation of motor vehicles. Care should be taken that ever increasing taxes do not restrict the ownership and operation of motor vehicles.

"Anyone who will take time to add up the taxes levied on the ownership and operation of motor vehicles, the high seven-cent per gallon state gasoline tax, license tag fees, driver's licenses fees, federal gasoline and automotive excise taxes, advalorem tax, sales taxes and other direct and indirect taxes cannot help but realize that the ownership and operation of motor vehicles will soon be restricted to only the wealthy unless the present trend is reversed."

Other officers elected at the meeting were L. T. Weir, vice chairman, and Mrs. Cecil Jones, Secretary.

I am getting as bad about fishing as were those folks I used to write about spend today talking about what I caught yesterday and what I hope to catch tomorrow; talking to Daves about what shape the jeep is, where to get bait, where to go, and "how about Sunday."

Mabel and I took a long trip in May, covering several southern states. I looked at the "country" while she drove. I did not see a prettier stretch of farming country anywhere on that trip than I see almost any day between Bew Springs and the edge of the bottom beyond Holcomb.
